Our Financial and Commercial Column.

Every department of business has an imme diale interest in the markets of the country, and in its financial fluctuations and condition. The man who falls to keep himself properly adrised as to the rise and fall of the markets, as controlled by the laws of demand and supply and the relative condition of the currency, is exposed to constant loss, and must necessaril fall behind his more intelligent and enterprising neighbors. In order to make our paper valuable as well as interesting, we shall continue to make this a special prayure. Our Daily Market Reports, domestic and foreign, by telegraph, and our City Reports, gotten up at heavy expense, have challenged the commendation of our hast business men; while our current Finan cial Reports from all the leading money centre of the country are fuller than have ever published by any other Journal in Tennessee.

WEST POINTERS. A Statistical Review of their Number

-The States Selected From-Their Subsequent Careers - How Many Were "Loyal" and How Many "Rebel," etc., etc. From the New York Evening Post-

It is not every year that so valuable a book appears as the "Biographical Register of the Officers and Graduates of the United States Military Academy," edited by Gen. George W. Cullum, and published by Mr. D. Van Nostrand. Of course, the paramount interest of this book is for those whose names figure on its pages, and for their friends; but it is also an important contribution to the history of the country. Gen, Collum has been indefatigable in his exertions to make the work accurate and complete. He says in his preface: "Every source of information, official and private, has been exhausted. * * * Archives have been ransacked, tons of manuscript, letters by thousands written, and interrogatories almost countless put wherever a hope of gleaning any information at all trust-

The body of the book consists of very condensed sketches of the careers of the graduates, both in military and in civil life. To this "Register," however, are prefixed in 1802 if has graduated 2218 cadets. Of corps of engineers, 844 to the infantry, 798 to the artillery, 55 to the cavalry, 136 to the dragoons, and the rest were distributed among the other branches of the service. two failed to receive commissions. Three were retired, 460 died in service, 183 were killed in battle, 712 resigned, 44 were disbanded, 26 mustered out, 11 discharged, 20 dropped, 33 dismissed, 10 cashiered, and 5 declined promotion, 659 are in active service, and 52 in retired service. With regard to the representation of the different States and territories in the Academy, 30 cadets have been appointed from Alabama, 7 from Arkansas, 2 from California, 1 from Colorado, 63 from Connecticut, 1 from Dakota, 19 from Delaware, 50 47 from Georgia, 35 from Illinois, 56 from 17 from Louisiana, 59 from Maine, 80 from Maryland, 139 from Massachusetts, 19 from Mexico, 353 from New York, 68 from North Carolina, 134 from Ohio, 2 from Oregon, 218 from Pennsylvania, 22 from Rhode Island, 62 from South Carolina, 61 from Tennessee, 4 from Texas, 2 from Utah, 7 from Vermont, 150 from Virginia, 2 from Washington, and 10 from Wisconsin. Of the 1243 graduates suposed to have been living in 1861, 283, or ss than 23 per cent., joined in the rebelion. Of the 820 graduates in the army at that time, 184, or about 22 per cent., joined in the rebellion. Sixteen of these officers were of Northern birth. Of the 99 graduates in civil life who entered the Rebel army, all but one were born in slave States. Out of 350 graduates born in Southern States who were in service at the ontbreak of the rebellion, 162, or nearly one-half, remained loyal. Of the 280 loyal graduates in civil life, "110 (about one-half of whom were beyond the meridian of life) re-entered the military service, and of the remainder of all less than forty-five years old became officers of the regular or volunteer armies, except thirty-nine who from disability or other causes did not take an active part in the war, though many performed useful services in civil capacities requiring miliary knowledge, while others who had tendered their services were unable to procure commissions." Of the whole number of loyal graduates in the regular and volunteer armies one-fifth were killed, and nore than one-third were wounded, General Cullum adds that "the entire cost of educating the whole of the seceding graduates in money was not more than was saved by the military knowledge of its West Point's) loyal graduates on every VAGARIES OF THE INSANE. Dr. Skae, of the Morningside Asylum a Edinburgh, says in his annual report that among the patients who died last year was one who had been in the asylum for twenty-nine years, and was a thorough gentleman. THE CARNIVAL OF LIES.

From the New Orleans Picayune, March 15. We often think that when lies are told f us or of our people, or of any visitor or transient resident, who may show us or re-ceive of us any civility, and who is abused for the same, that it is best to treat such stories with silent disregard. Sometimes it is well, perhaps, to put our foot on them for the sake of others, if not of ourselves. So false is the story telegraphed North that Mr. Davis and Gen. Hancock were seen, on the night of the firemen's parade, riding together in the same carriage, that they did not meet or see one another at all while the former was here, nor have any intercommunication directly nor indirectly, though we doubt not that each respects the other as a tried soldier and gentleman. So untrue is if that the bands of the firemen played the "Bonnie Blue Flag" before Gen. Hancock's headquarters when saluting him, that they played the popular loyal Federal airs alone. So unfair is the statement that the carrying six American flags in the firemen's procession is any proof of less loyalty now than when Sheridan was here last year, that then only one company carried a U. S. flag, while, before the war, it was never the custom to carry Finally, Mr. Davis kept entirely out of sight while the procession passed, and was only serenaded by one or two companies, on their return home, after the parade was over, while many other individuals were also serenaded in like manner.

Unquestionably, Mr. Davis has had ac-corded him the profounded respect of the best men of this community, alike of those who were Union men before and during the war, and those who then thought with him-aye, and of all good men; but so modestly and retiringly was this bestowed on and received by him, that the New Or leans Advocate, edited by Rev. Dr. Newman, and lately appointed by the Clerk of One graduate entered the civil service and the U. S. House of Representatives, to take the place of the Tribune, as the U. S. official organ for advertising, spoke thus, in its issue of the 7th, after those supposi titious events of the 4th so falsely avowed to have taken place, and with a malignity which shows how little love or forbearance for Mr. Davis was in the heart of its editor. Misled by the silence of this people and the retiring and modest behavior of Mr. Davis, it spoke thus of him, three days after the firemen's parade took place: "This miserable man is wearing out his time in our city. His presence neither excites interest in the people nor calls forth comments from the press. For him personally the Southern people entertain no regard, and only defend his name because he was the leader of their now "lost cause." feel whom a blind man has led into a ditch. other Confederate leader the mistakes which brought misfortune to their arms, death to their households, and poverty to their hearthstones. The companionship of bad men is endurable only when wickedness is triumphant; in defeat and adversity they hate each other. And this feeling o disgust will increase as the good work o reconstruction advances to completion; and when that good time comes, the American people will couple the name of Jefferson Davis with that of Benedict Arnold." We hope no one will accuse us of sharing the coarse and malignant spirit of Newman because we quote him. We only desire to show that, with equal opportunity to see Mr. Davis made the object of an "ovation," he did not see it, but thought him neglected and despised.

THE "WHAT-IS-IT" OUTDONE .

The Wild Man of the Woods-An Extraordinary Creature Discovered in Mississippi.

From the Vickshurg (Miss.) Herald. The following extraordinary storywhich for want of space we have been compelled to condense-we have received from a perfectly reliable source. About twentyive miles from this city, but in this county, is a small stream known as Bear creek, which empties into the Big Black river. The margin of both these streams, in that vicinity for miles back, is an almost impenetrable swamp, grown up with cane brakes and wild, tangled vines, but filled up with all kinds of game, including bear, leer, and turkeys. In pursuit of this game many young men resort to this apot with their hounds. For some time past, strange stories have been told by the negroes of an extraordinary animal seen near these swamps. The negroes, in their usual manner, gave graphic and startling descriptions of his appearance, but usually winding up with the declara-tion that it was the devil which had been seen by them. One peculiarity, as described by the negroes, was that from his tracks he seemed to be going both ways at once. That is, one foot pointed to the front and the other to the rear. These stories were laughed at and derided by the citizens, no one believing in any such statements. This extraordinary creature had often suddenly presented himself among the negroes in the early twilight, causing great consternation among them. He is lescribed by the negroes as being about eight feet high, each eye, in their language, "as large as a hen's egg," with no nose and no upper lip, his two eye teeth as large as a man's thumb, extending down over his chin about eight inches; his right foot points directly to the front and the left one to the rear, and the measurement of the track is just twenty-three inches in length; his finger nails are perfectly hard and solid, and are about six inches long; the hair on his head-which is stiff and wiry-sweeps the ground as he walks, and is parted in the rear and brought down in front on each side of his singularly formed chest, which is not round nor flat, but is angular like that of a fowl. The hair on the body of this singular being is very stiff and grows ositions of some 638 forts, military posts of the rear, parting at the angle of the nd arsenals, and the names of 72 battles breast bone, growing back and uniting with a long stiff growth on his spine, which extends back about one foot like the spinal boar-the hair on his arms is parted and grows in the same way, making a long, thick brosh on the back of the arms, extending from the shoulders to the point of his middle finger; the same peculiarity is observable on his legs. This singular and corrible object, the negroes represent, has been seen by them at different times for several months, and that night has been rendered hideous by the unearthly howlings of this unknown animal. No white person has ever seen him until recently, when he was discovered by a hunting party. Several gentlemen-acquaintainces of ours -met on last Thursday week with a view
